SRS HOME PAGE GETS NEW "LOOK" AND ADDED FEATURES

The Savannah River Site's web site has been revised to include a new, user-friendly navigation system and a more attractive, informative design.

"Fly-out" menus have been incorporated into the new design to greatly reduce the number of links needed to find information contained within the site.

The content of the home page has also been reorganized into a more efficient, logical order. As a part of this process, new information has been added throughout the site that more thoroughly describes programs and projects at SRS.

The SRS web site receives approximately 9.2 million hits a year. To keep visitors informed regarding accomplishments and events at SRS, a variety of news stories have been added to the top page of the site. These stories will frequently change featuring new material on a regular basis.

The revised site went on-line on June 20. It can be found at <http://www.srs.gov> or by typing the words Savannah River Site into any web search engine.
